7. Michael Kischner enthusiastically recommends this Old Vic performance of a play about Marc Chagall and his wife Bella: <https://bristololdvic.org.uk/whats-on/flying-lovers-of-vitebsk> -- If you want to read the review that got Michael's attention (he said It's a wonderful piece of theater!), here it is: <https://www.nytimes.com/2020/12/07/theater/flying-lovers-review-chagall.html> -- The play is streaming December 11 - 18. It's not free (costs $30) but is excellent.

Sharing some words from my son Dan that express how many of us are feeling: We had a good Thanksgiving overall, not completely devoid of tension, but still basically happy and hopeful. At one and the same time, I feel the ominous dark winter rising up to surround me and those I love, and sense us fraying around the edges, and yet I still feel that our center is holding, and that the cavalry is on its way.

Yours,

Denise
