Dear Friend, this link will take you to the announcement of a program I'm moderating (on Zoom and recorded for future viewing) on Nov 13 6:30-8: The 2024 Elections: One Year Out.

Folio has assembled an all-star (and politically balanced) group of analysts to discuss both national and Washington State races: John Lapinski, director of the Decision Desk for the NBC News network (he supervises all polling and "calls" election results) and a political science professor at Penn; US Rep. Marilyn Strickland, former mayor of Tacoma and ED of the Seattle Chamber of Commerce; conservative radio hosts John Carlson and Jason Rantz and Seattle political consultant Sandeep Kaushik.

We'll cover the candidates, campaigns and leading issues--the presidential, Congressional, state executive and legislative races and review the impact of Seattle's just-concluded City Council elections. There'll be an opportunity for audience questions and comments.

This is the second of several 2024 election-look ahead programs. The first was lively, rich, civil and occasionally funny. I expect this one will be, too.

The link will take you to a place where you can sign up and you'll receive a Zoom invite. While you're doing this, please log onto Folio's website (folioseattle.org) and see what our other offerings are. If you're interested in books and ideas, Folio is a feast and a bargain. I hope you'll join if you aren't already a member.

Thanks, Mort Kondracke""
